FAQs about group classes

What can I expect from the group classes?

New Groove's group classes are designed to help our students with learning outside of their private music lessons in creative and collaborative ways. You may come to listen and learn, play something you are working on, or ask questions about something you are working on or are curious about in music!

Are the classes required?

No! These classes are not required at all. They are simply an option available to you so you can practice outside of lessons, get in some time when you miss a weekly lesson, have fun learning with other students, and get some new tips and experience playing your instrument.

Who are the classes for?

Our classes are designed for ALL levels, ages, and abilities unless otherwise specified. For example, a few of our classes are for our adult community members only.

How do I sign up for the classes?

You can sign up by chatting New Groove in your member portal, emailing New Groove at info@newgroovemusicstudio.com or letting your teacher know!

When can I sign up?

You can sign up in advance, or any time before the start of the class.

What if I miss the class after signing up?

There is no penalty for missing a group class. These are meant to be a fun and flexible addition to your music learning experience! You may also come late or leave early.

What are the class themes about?

Class themes are simply different topics that your lead teacher will cover to expand your musical knowledge and skills to make you a well rounded musician and give you some new creative inspiration and resources!
